

UNT Creative Impact Award

Restrictions, Eligibility, Selection Criteria

The UNT Creative Impact Award will be given to the faculty member whose publications, performances, or exhibitions in the literary or creative arts have had the greatest societal impact. Criteria for the award include:

- At least five (5) years at UNT.
- Full-time tenured/tenure-track faculty member in good standing at the time of the nomination.
- Multiple artistic/literary achievements considered seminal works in the faculty member's discipline.
- Recognition by the faculty member's discipline and national/international achievements.
- Generation of mentees into the discipline.
- Has not won the UNT Creative Impact Award in the past three (3) years.
- Complete curriculum vitae.
- List of the highest affiliations/awards in the discipline and with her/his professional societies/organizations.
- List of doctoral or MFA students mentored (student name, degree, project title, and graduation date for each).
- Names of institutions of graduate mentees who are now university faculty members, if any.
- Names of graduate mentees now prominent in their artistic disciplines, if any.
- Copies/documentations of up to five (5) works (exhibitions, performances, or publications) considered seminal.
 - For publications, include full copies (and, if any are journal articles, include citation statistics).
 - For performances or exhibitions, include official documentation such as museum brochure, concert program, etc.
- Up to 1000 words describing the impact of the nominee's seminal work, in language understandable to persons outside the discipline.
- Self-nominations will not be considered.